Fatigue Control

The Jupiter JTR1150/1160 boasts unique Rose Brass Resonance Rings and one-piece braces. This design is intended to reduce the effort required to play in higher registers, mitigating fatigue associated with extensive practice sessions. Musicians aspiring to master challenging musical passages will note the ease of response.

Finesse and Command

Crafted with yellow brass outer tuning slide tubes and an additional bell brace, resonance in lower registers is bolstered, delivering a richer and more expressive tonal quality. Players seeking amplified depth and tonal sophistication will find this trumpet to be unparalleled.

Fueling Confidence

Featuring a shorter mouthpiece receiver and a redesigned main tuning slide section, this trumpet not only sets the standard for performance but also ensures improved playability, making it the preferred choice for those seeking superior control and expressive power.

Reverse and Standard Leadpipe Choices

The 1100 Series trumpet offers two distinct leadpipe configurations: the reverse leadpipe (JTR1150) and the standard leadpipe (JTR1160). These options provide musicians with the flexibility to choose the leadpipe that best aligns with their individual playing style, ensuring a customized performance experience.
